HAIL AND WIND

Heavy Damage to Orchards at Horatio and Rogers

BENTON, Ark. —(P)— Six persons were killed and several others injured when a tornado smashed through a rural area in the vicinity of the Tull community, eight miles south-east of here late Tuesday.

The dead:

Elijah Hicks, 53;

Elsie Hicks, 28, his daughter;

Mrs. Sophie Miller, 27 farm wife;

Ben Hicks, 50;

Mrs. Ben Hicks, 48;

Edward Hicks, 20, son of Ben Hicks.

Injured requiring hospitalization were brought here or taken to Bauxite, nearby mining community.

In the hospital here were William Hicks, 25, son of Elijah Hicks; and Miss Ruth Miller, 21, a relative of Mrs. Miller, at Bauxite was Raymond Hicks, 21, son of Elijah Hicks.

The three small children of Mrs. Miller were injured slightly but not given hospital treatment. William Hicks had a back injury, while his brother, Raymond, had a severe skull fracture.

Storm conditions were general over the central and northwestern sections of the state. Communication lines were down in several sections of the state.

Damage Near Nashville

NASHVILLE, Ark. — Hail and wind destroyed three houses and a packing shed two miles south of here about 6 p. m. Tuesday.

The destruction occurred to a house on the Henon Coleman farm, a packing shed and house on the Jim Reeder farm and a house on the Brooks Reese farm.

The wind did not strike Nashville, although heavy hail and rain fell without damage. There was no damage reported north of here.

Sevier County Damage

HORATIO, Ark. — A hailstorm striking northwest and north of town Monday night inflicted heavy damage on orchards and strawberry patches. Several orchard men reported their crops practically wiped out with young peach and apple trees bent over and limbs broken off trees.

About 15000 tons of peaches were in the hail belt. The storm was spotted, some trees escaping with little damage. L. O. Shull marketing agent estimated Tuesday that about half the peach crop in the Horatio area would be lost. All windows on the west side of the Baptist church were broken and roofs damaged over a strip two miles wide and four miles long north of town.

Storm Hits Fruit Sectors

ROGERS, Ark. —(P)— A heavy hail storm, accompanied by high winds swept a large section of the Northwest Arkansas fruit growing section late Tuesday, doing extensive damage.

At Lowell, six miles south of here, the strawberry crop was beaten by a 30-minute fall of hail. Some of the stones were reported to be as large as walnuts.

Near Lowell, the big apple orchard of Representative E. S. Graham was heavily torn by the wind. More than 25 of the larger trees were uprooted by the blow. The hail and wind also did much damage to the Moody peach orchards.

Small building throughout the area were unroofed by the gale.

There were no reports of any one being hurt.

Orchardists said the full extent of the damage would not be known until further survey Wednesday.

Cairo, Illinois Hit

Presidential Candidates Are Interviewed by John T. Flynn

Bring Recovery by Taking Chains Off Business—Dewey

Borrowing of Billions Cannot Go on, Says New Yorker

TO RESTORE TRUST

Declares Economic System Stalled on Dead Center

This is the first of six articles in which leading presidential candidates tell John T. Flynn, noted economist and writer, how they propose to bring about recovery if elected.

By JOHN T. FLYNN

NEA Service Special Correspondent

Recovery is the one great issue which transcends all others in this presidential campaign.

The economic system is stalled on dead center.

There are at least 10 million workers unemployed.

Private investment is at a standstill. The nation sinks from two to four billion dollars a year into debt.

It is sustained only by the borrowing of billions. This cannot go on.

What will the next President do to put an end to the borrowing, to revive private investment, to create jobs in industry? I asked this question of all the leading candidates.

I said: "Leave social reform out of the discussion for the purposes of this interview. Just tell me what you think is necessary to get the engine going again."

When I talked with Thomas E. Dewey of New York, candidate for the Republican nomination, I found that, like several other candidates, he too believes the atmosphere of the nation has to be changed before there can be recovery. But he put it differently.

"This economic system," he said, "is a delicately balanced one. It depends on confidence—not foolish confidence that there is a boom around every corner, but confidence in the integrity of the government and the integrity of business men. There are business men who are not honest, of course. But there are two million business men who could not operate unless they could trust each other's promises and agreements. But they must also be able to trust the promises and assurances of the government."

"Once let the idea get loaded in the minds of business men—manufacturers, merchants, financiers—that the government cannot be trusted, that it will not respect its promises, that it will say one thing today and another thing tomorrow and the system will get out of order like a watch that has a broken hair-spring."

"If men who have to invest money once get the notion that the President can change the value of that money at his own sweet will, that they may be suddenly subjected to some new tax attack, that some bureau may be turned loose on them, that promise-breaching spell may be made one week and violated the next and the very atmosphere in which business is done becomes stifling."

"A cheerful, insouciant shifting from one policy to a contradictory one puts an end to that atmosphere of integrity without which business cannot function."

"When we add to this an atmosphere of hostility to business, no one need look further for the reason why a nation of 130,000,000 people, with the greatest endowment of money, credit, machines, resources in the world, stands still."

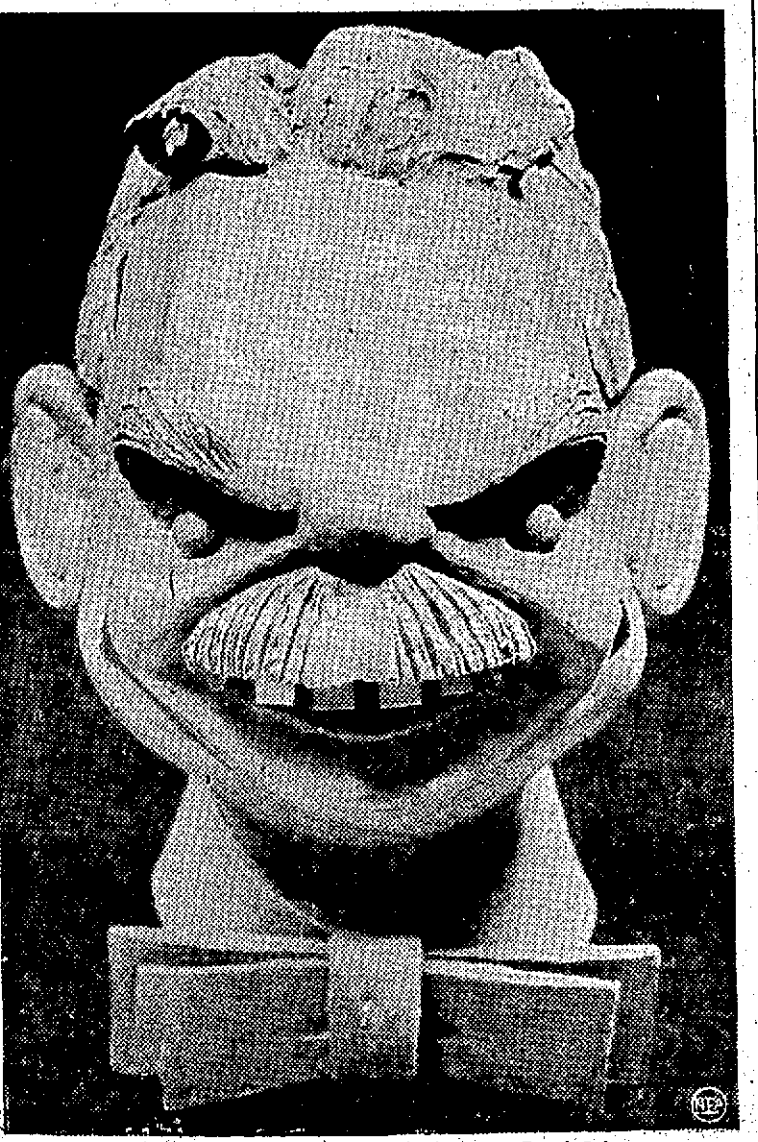

"We Do Worse Than Stand Still"

"But we do worse than stand still. Our great plant wears out at the rate of six billion dollars a year. We have to put that much new capital into it just to stand still. We do not. We fall short of this by a billion a year. We are actually going backward. If we keep it up we shall face a great crisis if we are not already there."

"The problem can be solved and solved surely by a government that realizes this fact and wants business to expand instead of contract. It will never be done by a government which has a vested interest in depression. It will never be done by a set of men who preach a doctrine of defeatism—that we are through building America, that our plant is overbuilt, that our economic system is doomed."

"Here then is what we must do: We must re-introduce integrity into gov-

Little Prospect of Favorable Report

Appointment of Mrs. Bodenhamer May Die Quietly

WASHINGTON —(P)— The possibility that Mrs. Irene Bodenhamer's appointment to the postmaster-generalship of El Dorado, Ark., may be allowed to die in the senate postoffice committee increases with each passing day.

The committee, confronted with the opposition to the appointment expressed by Senator Hattie Caraway, probably will prefer to leave the nomination in the committee, since all members agree that there is no prospect of a favorable report, and that the committeemen do not desire to report the nomination unfavorably.

An unfavorable report is unlikely, one committeeman said, unless Senator Caraway should insist on it. Since no report at all serves to keep Mrs. Bodenhamer out of the appointment, she may not seek such a course. She has not done so as yet.

Chairman McKellar (D-Tenn.) of the committee said the committee never reports favorably any postoffice nomination to which a home state senator expresses objection on the ground the appointee is "personally obnoxious."

Senator Caraway confined her opposition to that issue. Her only comment since publication of her objection has been that the opposition did not grow out of the fact that the appointee's husband, the late O. L. Bodenhamer, opposed her for the senate in 1932. Bodenhamer was a former national commander of the American Legion.

Representative Wade Kitchens, who recommended Mrs. Bodenhamer for the appointment, made an appearance with the appointee to ask that confirmation be recommended.

He said Mrs. Caraway told him Mrs. Bodenhamer did not vote for her in her last race and that she once left a meeting at which the speaker was about to pay the senator a compliment.

Kitchens told the committee that Mrs. Caraway was in error about Mrs. Bodenhamer leaving the meeting. Senator McKellar said Tuesday the committee had not taken a vote on the matter since the hearing and indicated none would be taken unless some senator insisted on an unfavorable report that would get the nomination to the floor.

Some members privately have expressed the hope that a reconciliation of differences could be effected, but those close to the Arkansas senator are not optimistic.

Senator John Miller has expressed himself as favorable to confirmation.

The ancient name for Dublin was Ashled. It was said to have been built in the year 140.

Hare-Raising Sprints

ABILENE, Kans. —(P)— George Kibler teaches wild Kansas jackrabbits to run for their lives.

The jackrabbits are trained by Kibler to act as quarry for hounds in the National Coursing association's races held each spring.

Twice a day Kibler drives the wild rabbits through the racing course, teaching them to run from chutes directly to the escapes at the far end of the park and to slip under them.

Rabbits cost from 75 cents to $1 each and are hounded that fails to elude the hounds goes down in the loss column of the association's books.

Million Dollars for Hitler Is Offered

NEW YORK —(P)— A reward of $1,000,000 in cash for the delivery of Adolf Hitler "alive, unwounded and unhurt," into the custody of the League of Nations was offered Tuesday night by Samuel Harden Church, president of the Carnegie Institute.

His offer, made in "good faith" in behalf of a group of Pittsburgh residents, was outlined in the following letter to the New York Times: "In order to prevent further bloodshed and outrage in this war of the German aggression, I am authorized by competent Americans to offer a reward of $1,000,000 to be paid in cash to the person or persons who will deliver Adolf Hitler, alive, unwounded and unhurt, into the custody of the League of Nations for trial before a high court of justice for his crimes against the peace and dignity of the world. This proposal will stand good through the month of May, 1940."

Signed, Samuel Harden Church, president, the Carnegie Institute.

Committee Kills New Hatch Bill

Would Have Regulated State Employees Paid by U. S.

WASHINGTON —(P)— The house judiciary committee killed Wednesday the senate-approved Hatch bill to regulate political activities of state employees paid with federal funds.

The vote was not announced, chairman Sumners (D-Tex.) refused to discuss the matter beyond making the bare announcement of the disposal of the measure.

Schools Closed at McGehee, No Funds

MCGEHEE —McGehee public schools were closed Tuesday because of lack of funds. A movement is under way to induce parents and guardians of students to make contributions so that a nine-month term may be completed.

H. G. Boyd, superintendent, in an address before a joint meeting of the Rotary and Lions clubs Tuesday night, explained the plan to continue the school. He pointed out that unless a nine-month term were held, the grade would be reduced from "A" to "B" and that the school would lose prestige.

Both civic bodies agreed to cooperate.

Dr. W. B. Grayson, state health officer and a resident of McGehee since 1925 until 1933, addressed the civic groups on "Health and Sanitation." He outlined the programs of the several divisions of the state Board of Health, and explained the manner in which the board was co-operating with local authorities, especially in the control of tuberculosis and venereal diseases.

New Record Set Tax Collections

April Collections Exceed Two Million Dollar Mark

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. —(P)— Revenue department collections of special state taxes for April brought in $2,038,120.98, a new record for that period.

Revenue Commissioner Z. M. McCarrall said it was the first time in the department's history that April collections exceeded the two million dollar mark.

Sales tax revenue of $495,289.97 and gasoline tax receipts of $907,580.27 were new records for April.

Mouse and Minister

REDDING, Calif. —(P)— It took a full measure of piety for the Rev. Wallace Buckingham to remain calm and finish his prayer at the Baptist church. While he was leading devotions, a mouse ran up his trouser leg and remained there until the prayer was ended. Then it scampered away.

Swallow's Return

WARREN, O. —(P)— William Wisniewski, 20 months old, found a tack and promptly swallowed it. The doctor didn't have instruments to remove it and bundled William up for a trip to Youngstown.

Just as they departed, William coughed—and up came the tack.

Attitude Toward Allies Becomes More Alarming

Apprehension Based on Atmosphere—Rather Than Facts

TENSION GREATER

British Shipping Is Diverted From the Mediterranean

PARIS —(P)— The Italian attitude toward the Allies "has become definitely alarming" in the last two days, a foreign ministry spokesman declared Wednesday.

The spokesman said the foreign office's concern over future relations with France's Mediterranean neighbor was "frankly uneasy."

He added that the ministry's apprehension was based on the general atmosphere in government and diplomatic circles in Rome rather than on specific facts.

Italy Says "No War"

ROME —(P)— United States Ambassador William Phillips was understood Wednesday to have been assured by Premier Mussolini that no war move is contemplated by Italy at present.

Phillips conferred with Il Duce Wednesday morning to receive "first-hand" information on Italy's position and intentions in view of recent international developments.

There was no comment on the "precautionary" diversion of through-British shipping from the Mediterranean to the long route around the tip of Africa.

British in Trouble

LONDON —(P)— The situation of Britain's forces in central Norway was described by a military spokesman Wednesday as "dangerous, and very obscure," but efforts to relieve them continued and the British air force struck savagely at three German air bases in Scandinavia.

A spokesman admitted it was "quite possible" Dombas and Støren, vital railway junctions had been taken by the Germans, as reported Tuesday.

The military spokesman declined to speculate on Norwegian developments, declaring "speculation at this stage may mean the loss of men's lives."

The air ministry said seven British bombers were lost in raids on German airbases at Stavanger, on the southwestern coast of Norway, on Fornebu, near the German-occupied capital, Oslo, and on Allborg, Denmark, but declared three German planes were shot down, and "heavy damage" inflicted on the three airfields.

German Successes

BERLIN —(P)— Heavy new blows at British naval power and a steady strengthening of the Nazi hold on Norway were reported by the high command Wednesday as the German army, jubilant over its swift, successive, mapped a sweeping concentric attack aimed at driving the Allied forces into the sea.

The high command's communique said German aerial bombs sent a British cruiser, a destroyer and five transports to the bottom, damaged another cruiser and five other transports.

Declaring the "German advance in Norway continues," the high command reported the German forces had taken more than 4,900 prisoners.

The high command's report continued that fighting in the Trondheim region indicated Allied resistance was still formidable in some areas in the path of German advance.

Russian Viewpoint

MOSCOW —(P)— War commissar Voroshiloff declared in a May day address Wednesday it is necessary to "double our vigilance and strengthen our army, navy. The U. S. S. R. is only standing aloof from war."

He received a tremendous parade of troops and singing workers.

The dominant theme in the address was that the workers of the world should unite under the Communist banner against capitalism and war.

200 Germans Expelled

BUCHAREST — The Rumanian government was reported Wednesday assigned orders for the expulsion of 200 Germans after a canvass of 690 homes in the oil field districts and other strategic areas of Rumania.

Police said quantities of firearms were found in many houses inhab-

BARBS

Pity a poor sailor on a night like this. With almost all ports subject to blockade, he is without a single sweetheart.

It becomes increasingly evident that the automobile, the talking picture and Hitler are here to stay.

People in the U. S. consumed more dairy products last year than in any other year on record. To walk down Front Street of a Saturday night, you'd never guess milk was the national beverage.

No-hit Bob Feller becomes a national figure, and as yet hasn't had to declare himself on government spending.

Continuing his policy, the Fuehrer has gone back on another promise to maintain the integrity of his borders. The crisis of the hour seems, turns out to be nothing but a double cross.

Shall Courage Be Wasted?

It is a shameful thing to have to report that some people snickered at the story of Paul Satko's "ark" as he sailed for Alaska. The story is about to sail for Alaska. Courage and determination and the indomitable dream of a better future in a new land are never things to laugh at.

Satko's story is an epic of courage that should make the suckers feel humble and ashamed. It is a fountain of inspiration and hope to see such determined bravery in our time. Satko was unemployed in Richmond, Va. Using odds and ends as material, he built a strange-looking "ark," and loaded it on a trailer and hauled it all the way across the country to Tacoma, Wash. He supported himself and his brood of children by doing odd jobs.

For six months at Tacoma he prepared for the journey to Alaska. He worked at what he could get. He worked at his boat.

Gradually he equipped it in makeshift fashion for a 1500-mile voyage—a voyage by a landman in a home-made boat through unknown waters, with no guide, but a vision of a new land where he might have out future for himself and seven children.

Authorities stopped him at Seattle. The boat wasn't strong enough, had not enough power. The children wouldn't be safe.

No doubt they are right. But can the United States afford to see Paul Satko thwarted? Is this kind of courage so common that it can be cast aside?

How safe were the western pioneers when they pushed off for the west in clumsy wagons, facing hostile Indians and brutal blizzards, and starvation? "Flee the Peak or Bust!" read the scrawled signs on the Conestoga wagons, and whitening bones along the trails testified that many fell short. Yet the west was won.

Without attempting to judge between Satko and those who are holding him up at the moment, there is something there on the Seattle docks that must not be wasted. It is courage and determination and initiative, and it must not be frustrated.

Alaska needs men like Paul Satko, and the United States needs them, and the world!

Radio is quite confusing these days, being difficult to determine whether the comedian's show is sponsored by tooth paste or a forthcoming film.

The May, Queen

You must wake and call me early, call me early, mother dear;
To-morrow will be the happiest time of all the glad New-Year;
Of all the glad New-Year, mother, the maddest merriest day;
For I'm to be Queen o' the May, mother,
I'm to be Queen o' the May.
The honeysuckle round the porch has wove its wavy bowers,
And by the meadow trenched blow the faint sweet cuckoo flowers;
And the wild-march marigold shines like fire in swamps and hollows gray.
And I'm to be Queen o' the May, mother I'm to be Queen o' the May.
The night winds come and go, mother, upon the meadow grass,

And the happy stars above them seem to brighten as they pass;
There will not be a drop of rain the whole of the live-long day,
And I'm to be Queen o' the May, mother, I'm to be Queen o' the May.
—Tennyson.

Carleton Hurls No-Hitter As Brooklyn Wins Ninth Straight

CINCINNATI —(AP)—James Otto ("Tex") Carleton, 33, entered baseball's no-hit Hall of Fame Tuesday by pitching the undefeated Brooklyn Dodgers to a 3-to-0 triumph over the Cincinnati Reds.

It was the ninth straight victory for the Dodgers, tying a modern major league record for consecutive wins at the start of the season—a string last attained by the New York Giants in 1919.

It was the second no-hit game of the season, coming two weeks after Bob Feller's no-hitter on opening day for the Cleveland Indians against the Chicago White Sox.

Carleton, a right-hander who came up to the St. Louis Cardinals in 1932 and moved to the Chicago Cubs in 1935, playing in one World Series with each club. He developed arm trouble a couple of years ago and was sold to Milwaukee in the American Association last year. He won 11 last nine there compared to highs of 17-11 for the Cards in 1933 and 16-8 for the Cubs in 1937 and during the winter was purchased conditionally by the Dodgers.

This was what made his great evening the more astounding. He was not worried by three errors his teammates committed in the early innings and in the last five set the National League champions down in order.

Coscarart Hits Homer
At the start of the contest, played before 10,544 enthusiastic fans, was a tight mound duel between Carleton and Tim Lincecum. But in the fifth, Turner walked two men and Pete Coscarart hit a home run that counted for all the scoring of the game.

Carleton walked Bill Werber in the first inning, an error by Peeewe Reese let Harry Craft reach first and a wild throw by Coscarart let him go to second in the second inning. In the third, Werber again wanted out a base on balls and in the fourth a bad throw by Third Baseman Cookie Lavagetto allowed Frank McCormick to go all the way to second.

His Second Victory
But the big right-hander never let any of these incidents develop into a threat. It was Carleton's second victory this season. His other was over the Boston Bees in the Dodgers' third game when he won, 8 to 3, giving up 10 hits, striking out six and no-hitter brings this fan big odds

PATERSON, N. J. —(AP)—Orie Santillo got excited listening to a broadcast of the Brooklyn Dodgers-Cincinnati baseball game during the first inning Tuesday.

"I'll bet anybody Tex Carleton pitches a no-hit, no-run game," he told a half-dozen friends. Don Sole took him up. They agreed on odds of 100 to 1. When the game was over Santillo pocketed the pay-off—one dollar.

Prior to today the National League had not had a no-hit game since Johnny Vander Meer of the Reds pitched his "double" in June, 1938.

ernment—organize a government that men can trust to do tomorrow what it promises today.

"Next we must elect a government which is eager to find the means of enabling business to function, which is not hostile to business—really wants to put business men to work."

"Then we must find means to do small business men. There are 2,000,000 small business men and 1,760,000 of them are little business men—men who employ less than 20 men."

"To help them we must do at least three things. We must repeal the tax structure so as not to penalize them for expanding. The undivided profits tax was a terrible penalty on small business corporations which almost always finance their growth out of their profits. Fear of a return to that is a fatal deterrent."

"Second, we must make it possible for a small corporation to issue securities without the terrible cost involved in the present SEC rules. A corporation can put out a $25,000 security issue at a registration expense of 31 cents per $100; but a small corporation to register an expense of $301 per $100. Therefore we must change the personnel of the SEC and rationalize its rules."

"Finally we must provide credit institutions for small business men—private and corporate—from which they can obtain funds in that interim between short-term and long-term financing."

"We Must Free Business"
Generally we must free business. There will be more jobs when business men hire more people. There are 2,000,000 business concerns which now hire 45,000,000 men and women. We want them to hire another six or eight million people. These people will not go to work until these business concerns hire them.

"Therefore the thing to do is to free these concerns—take the chains off—give them the signal to go. The New Deal has enacted 49 separate laws to hamper, restrict, regulate and slow up business. The job of recovery is to emancipate business from these chains."

"Of course in a great populous country there will always be abuses to be dealt with. We must deal with them. But we must deal with abuses without using them as an excuse for seizing power."

Child Drowns
FRANKSTON, Texas — A year-old child was drowned Tuesday night when a cloudburst swept a wall of water through a highway culvert in which its mother sought refuge from a tornado.

The cyclone struck Frankston, Henderson county town of 800, shortly before dark. Mrs. Ted Cook took her year-old daughter, Mary Lee, and sought refuge from the storm in a concrete culvert over a creek near her farm home.

The wall of water swept into the culvert, washed the two out and pulled the child from the mother's arms. Mrs. Cook regained her feet and found the body of her child 300 feet downstream.

The baby was the only casualty reported in the tornado which damaged 12 houses in Frankston and several farm homes between here and Paynon.

Longview Hit
LONGVIEW, Texas — A heavy wind storm accompanied by huge hailstones, struck Longview late Tuesday, uprooting trees, blowing out store windows and demolishing a few woodbuildings in the residential section.

There were no reports on injuries after the storm which lasted about 15 minutes.

One automobile owner found a large tree uprooted and split open, then set down astride the car. Another tree nearby was uprooted, lifting a parked automobile from the ground by its massive roots as they came from the ground.

SERIAL STORY BET ON LOVE BY CHARLES B. FARMER

YESTERDAY: Sherry in surprise when Paul has claimed Pepper Boy. Another owner has died a claim so the owner of the dice for the colt. Uncle Willie consoling Sherry, saying: "This isn't finished yet. We've got a say!"

CHAPTER VI
SHERRY shook her head, as she patted Uncle Willie's arm. "Just wait. This isn't over yet," he whispered reassuringly. But Sherry knew he was just trying to ease her mental suffering.

She heard the dice rattling in the leather cup as Jamison shook them for his throw. Paul Wharton was watching the other owner closely. Sherry saw determination in Wharton's eyes, in the firm set of his jaw. Paul was out to win—he had to win—her horse!

Jamison's hand came down and two red dice rolled out on the counter—a deuce and a five. "Seven," the secretary announced, taking up the dice, passing the cup to Wharton.

Paul shook the dice quickly, rolled them down the counter. Every eye was fixed upon the bouncing cubes. Sherry held her breath as they came to a stop at last. A four and a six.

"Mr. Wharton gets the colt!" Willie Bond was saying to the secretary. "Not so fast, I demand to see the claiming slip Mr. Wharton deposited."

"Show it to him!" Wharton spoke with aloofness, looking out a window. "My name is signed to it, I believe."

"Yes, sir, your name is," Willie Bond conceded, "and also I see the time-stamp; you dropped this in the box at 2:17."

"Well, what of it?" "Plenty, young sir!" Willie Bond spoke sharply. "Jockey Club rules say the claim must be deposited in the box at least 15 minutes before post time. Post time was advertised as 2:30. You were two minutes late—look at the time stamped on it!"

PAUL WHARTON did look; then swore to himself. "That darn trainer," he said aloud. "Look here," he demanded of the secretary, "are we going by technicalities on this race track?"

Willie Bond didn't give the official time to speak. He turned on Wharton: "Do we race by Jockey Club rules—or is it every man for himself? If you don't recognize the Jockey Club, maybe the stewards would like to know it."

"Aw, thunder!" "Thunder yourself—your claim's thrown out. Right, Mr. Secretary?" The latter nodded, said: "Correct. Horse goes to the next man."

"My winnin' day," the unshaven trainer grinned. "Gimme the order for that colt."

"Not so fast, my good man," Willie Bond protested. "The colt isn't yours—yet."

"Ain't, eh? Didn't the secretary just say it is—we go by rules on this track." He smirked his lips. "And here's $2500 cash-money for that colt." He laid a pile of bills on the counter.

"No doubt excellent currency—but may I ask, Mr. Secretary," Willie Bond spoke in his suave tones, "whether this—ah—fellow has $2500 to his credit with the Racing Association? Has he, Mr. Secretary?"

The latter was distinctly annoyed. He glared over his glasses at the big man in front of him. "Racing season's just begun—"

"Correct," Willie Bond conceded, "and we've agreed that Jockey Club rules govern here. The rules distinctly say—"he waved a fat finger under the secretary's long nose—"and see if my memory is correct, 'each person desiring to make a claim, unless he shall have such amount to his credit with the association, must first deposit with the association the whole amount of his claim in cash.'"

"This—ah—fellow hasn't that much credit on your books; and I take it the—ah—fellow didn't deposit $2500 with you, sir, before the race; else he wouldn't tender the currency now."

"One minute," Mr. Bond, the official smiled, tried to speak placatingly. "Generally there's a bit of latitude—when intentions are known to be good. Usually we'll take a man's money after the race."

"Say! If you're going to make that kind of exception," Paul Wharton exploded, "then you've got to accept my claim. What's two minutes, when my intentions are good?"

William Bond stepped back, looked straight at the harassed official. "Suppose we take this to the stewards, ask them whether or not Jockey Club rules govern—"

"Please, please!" The secretary had no desire to admit to the stewards that he could not rule his own bailiwick. He smiled unctuously, rubbed his hands together, finished, "I should say—in fact I do say, that—ah—ladies, gentlemen, all claims are disallowed; the colt remains the property of Miss Bond. WASHINGTON — The American army's 1940 maneuvers are testing the new products of Europe's war laboratories. Blitzkrieg, civilian participation, mechanization and the other advances in the so-called art of war must pass an examination in Louisiana gumbo mud. May 5 to May 25, before the Mr. Big in the U. S. Military forces stamp "approved" on Europe's new techniques. The 1940 maneuvers, bringing together 70,000 men from 35 states, are the greatest massing of troops in U. S. peacetime history. They fulfill a long-time army dream of large-scale training operations. Previously army units were forced to train separately at widely-scattered points. A general who talks tough—and is tough—won authorization for the war exercises by hammering on the table and telling a few home truths to congress. The General Spoke Out Jut-jawed Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, told "em, cold turkey, that the United States army was improperly trained. "We have been forced (by lack of funds) to build up our technique of command and control, and even our development of leadership, largely on a theoretical basis," General Marshall declared. General Marshall asked money to train his troops right. He got it. That's why (1) blitzkrieg, (2) the new organization of the American army division and (3) military mechanization are under critical scrutiny in the stiffest peacetime test ever faced by American troops. Blitzkrieg wowed the world when the Germans overran Poland. But in Finland the Russian version flopped flatter than spilled milk. Somewhere between the startling success of the Germans and the monumental bust of the soviet gasoline cavalry lies the ideal—and limited—function of a power army. The 20-day operations in the toughest terrain available will determine the capabilities and limitations of mechanized forces. The 20,000-square-mile war games sector was deliberately chosen to put men and machines through the acid test under adverse conditions. It is laced with bayou sand swamps. The Red and "Sabine" rivers, with few bridges, form natural barriers to sweeping troop movements. Garand Gun Will Be There The maneuvers will be the first broad test of the new streamlined army division. Total strength is 11,000 men, compared to 22,000 in the old unit. But the smaller force packs as much potential death as the old because their guns are better. The new divisions are equipped with the army's pet killer, the Garand M-1 semi-automatic rifle. It pops off rat-a-tat-tat style—five times as fast as the old Springfield rifle. The new division can "march" 75 miles a day, as against the 15-mile on-the-hoof range of the old. Doughboys get a break. They ride half the time. The old army mule that ran on hay and profanity has been given the air. The 1,000 trucks of the new division haul half the outfit, then shuttle back for the other marchers. The officers know the theories—they're about all they've had for years. But the brass hats want to know if they can translate theory into actual know-how. Legion Lends a Hand Basically, the actual maneuvers pit two armies, with full modern equipment, against each other. (Some 9,000 American Legion members have also been enlisted to man 1,600 aircraft warning stations, to test the new civilian auxiliary technique—used by Britain.) Here's the picture: The Blue Army, 45,000 troops under Maj. Gen. Walter Campbell Short, is based north of Alexandria, La. The red army—a highly mobile force, ideally fitted for blitzkrieg's lightning thrusts—is based 100 miles west at

Reporter Fired for Leading a Band

Now Leader 126 Orchestras in U. S.

NEW YORK —(AP)—Several years ago at the newspaper correspondent's ball in Washington a reporter jumped to the platform and began leading the orchestra as a joke. His editor didn't think it was very funny, and fired him next morning. "You make a better band leader," the editor told him sarcastically than you do a reporter. The reported decided the editor might be right, and started leading a band. Today that reporter, husky Meyer Davis, is known as "the millionaire maestro." He heads an organization of 126 bands—at least 65 of which are active at all times—besides directing his own. He's the man who introduced the "chain-store" idea to the orchestra world. He has an active New York office staff of 50 and maintains offices in six other major cities. He meets an annual payroll of never less than $3,000,000. His band has played at White House parties for every president since Woodrow Wilson. Many other national figures have engaged him, such as Henry Ford, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Andrew Mellon, A. A. Watrous, Kent, Gene Tunney, the Duponts, Edward T. Stotesbury, Owen D. Young and Mrs. Evelyn Walsh McClean. He has played all over Europe as well as the United States. In Venice, he struck up a martial air for Mussolini, but the dictator asked him to change it to a waltz. That was several years ago. Last season in swanky Newport, Davis' bands played 27 of 28 parties. Since he plays principally for society people, he doesn't give out much swing. Society people, he says, don't like it, or at any rate won't dance to it. Davis is nearly six feet tall and very fast on his feet. His sharp eyes peer out from behind glasses. He is getting bald. He always arises at 7 a. m., no matter how late he has been up the night before. He never carries luggage with him, keeping wardrobes in many cities. Many stars got their start with his orchestras, including Kate Smith, who began by singing for $7.50 a night. Davis is a violinist, but he doesn't play much any more. He would rather lead a band.

Kill Mosquitoes With Electricity

Lures Male With High Whine of the Female

WASHINGTON — The slap-and-scratch season soon will be with us... and I figured it's high time we got into the middle of the mosquito situation. Wars may come and wars may go but the fall of the house of Oslo doesn't strike nearly as close to home as a cloud of whirling mosquitoes of the season. Like a diplomat caught in a corner, it refused to be interviewed. But just hearing it there gave me an idea and I popped in on the federal bureau of entomology today. They know more about mosquitoes than J. Edgar Hoover, Martin Dies, and the army and navy combined will ever know about Nazis. For example, Kipling couldn't possibly have written with so much fervor about the "femal of the species" being more deadly than the male, if he hadn't had a brush with mosquitoes. As a matter of fact, it's the female mosquito that's afflicted with blood lust. They Croon of Love The young men of the tribe are just winged Rudy Vallees and Bing Crosbys who vo-do-de-o-do about the summer night, trying to get the ladies to pay them some mind. And it's their little habit of going where the female humming is thickest that the bureau of entomology hopes will be their undoing. The bureau is pushing a new electrical gadget which duplicates the siren love songs of the mosquito females. When the young men dash into the trap, the result is shocking at least shocking enough to kill the love-sick swains. The theory is that if this wholesale electrocution system can kill off enough males, the queenies will get discouraged and the tribe will become extinct. It's a grand theory. I hope it works. That wasn't all I learned from the bureau. Not only are the girl mosquitoes the only ones that attack man but only one of three families of girls is deadly. If you're merely had a night out with the Culex and Aedes girls, the bureau tells me, you needn't worry. They are pests, it is true, and can raise hob and knobs on the skin you love to touch and yours, too, but they don't do serious damage. She's a Changed Gal Edie Aedis and her calm used to pack a kiss of death but science put a stop to that. They isolated the yellowjacket sufferers... put them where Edie couldn't come up to see them anymore... which made a lady out of Edie. That applies only to this country. There are some nations where Edie still is doing business as Murder, Inc. but even there he's losing ground. The Borgia of mosquitoes today is Anopheles. Annie is the girl who held up the building of the Panama canal. Her specialty is malaria. It wasn't until the U. S. army medical corps went to work on Annie—made her home untenable, destroyed her larvae by gillions—that workmen could work in Panama. Only recently a flock of the girls from Africa on a trans-Atlantic plane and started a serious outbreak of malaria in Brazil. That's why you'll find the bureau of entomology boys down at the airport, combing over every plane that comes in from South America. It's Annie's sisters (including a recent debutante Anopheles Walkeri Theobald) down in the southland that do the most damage in the United States and malaria victims are so common there that Annie has some kin-folks in the west, too, but they have a hard time finding malaria blood. The bureau and medicine and education are making headway. The time may come when the Borgias of Mosquito-land may be as dead as the Borgias of history. But it's still a good idea to duck when you hear that hum-o-de-o-do, even if it's only Big Mosquito crooning to a lovelorn mate. 'Posts' His Books RICHMOND, Va.—(AP)—A farmer applied to the Virginia division of motor vehicles for a refund of tax on gasoline used in a farm tractor. "I do not have an itemized statement," he wrote, "but I can swear that amount was used in the tractor, for each time I put five gallons of gas in the tractor I placed a nail in a post." The division told him his "heavy" bookkeeping was inadequate and he could forget about the $6.50 refund.

"New Weapons" Not Really New

Germans Merely Apply Ideas Known of for Years

By JACK STINNETT
WASHINGTON — That there's nothing new under the sun has become such a trite phrase that anyone who reads may run off at the mouth with a dozen times a day without getting more response than a casual "huh? it so?" Nevertheless, ever since the European wildfire burned into Sudetenland and spread to the Finnish forests, reams have been written and more reams talked about "new methods" of warfare. With the German foray into Scandinavia, this talk has broken out anew. Commentators and military observers are at it hammer and tongs. But wait a bit. Armies, guns and supplies, dropped from the skies—marvelous! Thousands of troops ferried by plane across the Skagerrak into suffering Norway—wonderful! The old troop transport system soon will be obsolete. Better start junking the ships. Better start building armadas of the skyways. Submarines and planes: the brand new way of dealing blitzkrieg death. That A. Hitler and his gang—what geniuses! They've made the only really original contribution to warfare in our generation. Wait a minute before you start passing out any credits—if credit it can be called—to A. Hitler, Stalin & Komrade. Inc. Let's take a look at three letters dug up by the American Association for the Advancement of Science. Letter No. 1, dated 1784 and written by a man who had just witnessed several balloon ascensions: "It appears, as you observe, to be a discovery of great importance, and what may possibly give a new turn to human affairs. Convinced sovereigns of the folly of wars may perhaps be one effect of it; since it will be impracticable for the most potent of them to guard their dominions. Five thousand balloons, capable of raising two men each, could not cost more than five ships of the line; and where is the prince who can afford so to cover his country with troops for its defense, as that 10,000 men descending from the clouds might not in many places do an infinite deal of mischief, before a force could be brought together to repel them?" The author? Benjamin Franklin! And That's Not All But wait. Go back more than 200 years, to 1670, and hear what Father Francesco Lana had to say about an airplane which he invented, but which because of poverty, he could not build. "It may be thought that God will never suffer this invention to take effect, because of the many consequences which may disturb the civil governments of men. For who sees not that no city can be secure against attack, since our ship may at any time be placed directly over it and descending down, may discharge soldiers. The same would happen to private houses or ships at sea. And this they may do not only to ships but to great buildings, castles, cities, with such security that they which cast these things down from a great height out of gun-shot cannot on the other side be offended by those below." And that's not all: 170 years before that, old Leonardo da Vinci, drew marvelous plans for a submarine, and in his notes set forth this reason for not making his invention public: "How by an appliance many are able to remain for some time under water; how and why I do not describe my method of remaining under water for as long a time as I can remain without food; and this I publish or divulge on account of the evil nature of men who would practice assassination at the bottom of seas, by breaking the ships in the lowest parts and sinking them together with the crews who are in them." So you see if there's anything new under Mars, Hitler et al., didn't think of it first. The natives of the island of Gu known as Chambrors, are of Malay origin with strains of Spanish, Mexican, Chinese, American and Filipino blood.
